
From: BURROWS Paul
Sent: 09 November 2015 09:28
To: Claire Williams (clwilliams@kctmo.org.uk)
Cc: REED Neil; MALCOLM Andrew
Subject: CDM Advisor

Dear Claire,

Further to our discussion on Friday and the handover of CDM information for the Grenfell project, I can confirm that there is no legal requirement for a CDM advisor.

The Construction (Design and Management) Regulations 2015 identifies only the following duty holders

- Client
- Principal Designer (where there is more than 1 contractor)
- Principal Contractor
- Designers
- Contractors

A number of local Authorities and private organisations are utilising a 'CDM Advisor' role, to ensure that either they, or organisations they have appointed, are working in compliance with the Regulations, but I can confirm that there is no legal requirement for this.

If at any point in time you feel a service such as this would be of benefit to KCTMO, please contact me as this is something we can provide, but I stress that there is no legal requirement.

Best Regards,

Paul

Paul Burrows CMIOSH MIIRSM RMaPS AIEMA OSHCR
Head of SHEQual

ARTELIA UK

High Holborn House 52 – 54 High Holborn · London · WC1V 6RL · United Kingdom
Tel : [REDACTED] mob [REDACTED] www.uk.arteliagroup.com

THE UK PROPERTY MARKETPLACE
mipim[®]UK
21-23 OCTOBER, OLYMPIA
VISIT US ON STAND K20