Perhaps it's my miss-understanding so I will double check with Joe.

Joe did discuss this with me - I was unaware of the PLCP decision.

You just need to beware that there is a possibility the BBA could pick this up when they audit incoming chemical receipts, and they did specifically inform us that any new chemicals should be highlighted to them following prior audits when they found we had made a number of chemical changes and not told them about it.

Ian,

We are not intending to do any external testing as I am sure the BBA would require and this was discussed and agreed at the PLCP/PDI meeting. You can ask Joe to confirm but my understanding is that we haven't intended to make the change to the quality plan.

Jodey,

Will will need to give the BBA notification of the change of Polyol for FR5000.

We will be requiring a report (external) which demonstrates the change has no detrimental effect to either the thermal or stability performance of the product.

Can you provide me which the product name / supplier and raw material spec number so this can be included in to our own Quality plan.

Thanks
Ian
