Subject: RE: fire guidance purpose built flats FW: Letter for Sir Merrick Cockell - issue raised on disabilities saying our guidance is unlawful from Elspeth Grant of TripleAConsult

Hi Steven

Para 12 is mixing a period of fire resistance with real time. "A fire within a flat should, in the initial stages of the fire, stay within the confines of the flat, for anything up to a period of 60 minutes". In the vast majority of cases fires will be contained in a flat until they burn out. You might wish to use a different form of words to avoid a counter argument that 60 minutes isn't long enough for disabled people.

Regards
Brian

Hello Colin, I am not sure this organisation took part in the consultation but it would be good to check if there was a written response from them. Sir Merrick Cockell is the new Chairman of LG Group our equivalent of the Minister. I am currently off after a knee operation and can't log in properly hence forwarded e mails. I hope the letter is attached. Are you able to provide a response to her points as I will be expected to provide a full response on this. I have also copied in CLG colleagues who also will be able to provide views. Many thanks Caroline
