Subject: Lifts malfunction at Grenfell Tower and replacing a lifts in near future and financial implication for leaseholders

Dear Leaseholders,
With regards to the two lifts at Grenfell Tower, as you may noticed the nature of the malfunction going on and times it takes to repairs of the two lifts.
Do you believe that lifts will survive its life expectancy (i.e normally minimum 30 years with 700K investment) or will completely breakdown within 3 years maximum?
Do you also believe that we as a leaseholder have serious financial implication and ramification?
Could you please kindly confirm as a matter of courtesy by answering
